The Problem We Address

For any enterprise to thrive today in the digital age it is vital that it keep its mission-critical applications always* successful, always meeting business needs well (*from product inception until product end of life (EOL.)) However, a critical challenge across information technology (IT) modernization and digital transformation projects is product teams struggling with requirements. Struggling with requirements results in mission-critical applications that do not meet business needs well, affecting mission outcomes.

Our Solution

WholeTEAM™ is a unique agile requirements definition and management framework (RDMF) designed to ensure that mission-critical applications are always aligned with business needs from product inception through product end-of-life. It addresses the root cause of poor outcomes on IT modernization projects: miscommunication around requirements.

WholeTEAM™ enhances a product team's intra-team and inter-team collaboration by providing a common, simplified language for everyone involved – from senior leaders and business stakeholders to program management offices (PMO) and IT teams. This simplicity and effectiveness make WholeTEAM™ the most efficient tool for defining, managing, and evolving requirements.
